Ken BROWN Column

Good Afternoon,

Our last home game against Leicester, in more ways than one, proved to be rather a testing time for everybody concerned. I thought the conditions that both sides had to contend with were quite ridiculous and yet both teams served up quite an entertaining game of football. I must admit I had a quiet chuckle to myself when I read that David Pleat, the Leicester Manager, thought our goal was off-side and that his team should have won the match. I had to remind him of the robbery committed at Filbert Street earlier this season when with just a few minutes to go and Leicester winning 1-0 we had a blatant penalty disallowed by the referee for a push on Sean McCarthy as he was about to put into an empty net. It appeared that everyone in the ground thought it was a penalty — that is everyone except the referee — he waved play on.

David Byrne fitted into our set-up quite nicely and Owen Pickard did not let anyone down on his first full game, and the same goes for Jason Rowbotham.

Today's visitors, Swindon Town, are having a very good run at present and at the time of going to press they had just beaten Bournemouth 3-2 at Bournemouth and it sets them up nicely for a run in to get into the play-offs, so it's up to us to put a spoke in the wheel if we can, and as Swindon will have a good number to support them I would like to think that you, our supporters, will make yourselves heard and give our players all the help possible.

Finally, I would like to take this opportunity to try and put the record straight about my attempts to get new players into the club before the dead-line. For any doubting Thomases I would like to inform them that if I don't happen to get any players it would not be for the lack of trying. For instance, I had agreed fees for three players with their respective clubs. Two of the players did not fancy playing at Plymouth and the other decided quite unexpectedly to leave Plymouth and go to another club, and that's after playing one game for us and agreeing terms for a permanent move, but there was nothing I could do to stop it happening! Enjoy the match.

Good afternoon. I hope everyone is enjoying the Easter break. I would like to welcome to Home Park, a special guest, Barry Marshall who is the Rothmans South West Area Manager. Barry is a very keen Plymouth Argyle supporter and also an enthusiastic yachtsman.

This year Rothmans are entering the 'Whitbread Round the World Race' with an all British new maxi yacht. This is the fifth Whitbread Round the World Race and is scheduled to start in the Solent on the 2nd September 1989.

The yacht will be named ROTHMANS and has been designed by Englishman, Rob Humphreys, and is presently being built by Adrian Thompson and Rob Lipsett of Paragon Composites Ltd at Totnes. The finished yacht will hit the water in March this year when skipper, Lawrie Smith, and his crew, will take her out into the Atlantic for a rigorous sea trial programme.

The Whitbread Round the World Race is more than just a yacht race and with a total distance of nearly 33,000 nautical miles, it is an out and out endurance test. Rothmans have accumulated a worthy team who are sure to continue the company's previous record in other major sporting successes.

So if you're out and about down at the Hamble, you may see the Rothmans 80ft hi-tech yacht going through its paces before the big race.

Lawrie Smith, the newly appointed skipper of the Rothmans Yacht.

Secretarys Notes

There have been no shortage of topics of conversation in the football world recently.

Brian Clough is supposed to have said that Trevor Francis is too nice a guy to be a football manager. But his decision to fine Queens Park Rangers player Martin Allen 2 weeks pay for leaving the 1st team squad at Newcastle and returning to London to be with his wife, who was imminently pregnant, has thrown Fleet Street, the media in general and the players union in a right old tizzy. Perhaps he thought it was the kind of thing Cloughie would have done. Trevor's former manager at QPR Jim 'Bald Eagle' Smith, said that he was wrong, as did a couple of nondescript ladies of parliament, but plenty of other people in the football world said the manager was right.

Then we had the ITV programme 'Out of Order', which I thought was just the right name when they showed clips of Arsenal players swearing at the referee who was wired up for sound for the programme. OK, the Arsenal players were out of order, but it's a very emotional game and if anyone should be hauled over the coals it should be the person who gave permission for the referee to take part in such a fiasco. And surely the referee himself could have refused, although by the seems of things he seemed to enjoy himself — he said as much afterwards.

I agree with Jimmy Greaves' remarks in the 'Saint and Greavsie Show' — when Tommy Docherty appeared and criticised the Arsenal players and manager George Graham, he thought he was watching 'Game for a Laugh'. Talk about the pot calling the kettle black — I just burst out laughing and I bet a lot of people who know Tommy Docherty did as well. To quote his own words, he has had more clubs than Jack Nicklaus and has earned a good living from the game he now knocks at every opportunity. He has known the good life and drunk Champagne with the best of them and it really is a sorry sight to see him stoop so low. Had the remarks he made come from a more eminent person in the game perhaps more notice might have been taken, but that still doesn't excuse the idiocy in allowing such a bad advert for the game to be shown.

Where are they Now

David Corbett, born Marshfield, April 15th 1940.

David was signed by Swindon Town in 1958 and during his three seasons with the club he made 68 appearances, scoring 3 goals.

He joined the Home Park staff in February 1962, and scored in his league debut for the club playing against Scunthorpe United. After completing 84 appearances he sustained a badly broken leg playing against Leicester City reserves at Filbert Street. This kept him out of football for the rest of that season, but starting on the road back he played in a pre-season friendly against Bedford Town in August 1967 when he broke the leg for a second time. This sadly put an end to what promised to be a bright career, having already been selected in the Under 23 squad to represent England against Belgium.

A benefit game was played in 1969 at Home Park with Leicester City providing the opposition.

In the sixties a paper called the 'Sporting Record' made an award to the league player for best performance of the week, and in October 1962 David Corbett was announced the winner for his performance in Plymouth Argyle's 6-1 victory over Charlton Athletic.

A game that has lasting memories from his career was scoring the winning goal against Manchester City at Home Park in March 1964.

On retiring from football he took up employment in H.M. Dockyard as a fitter.

THE FOOTBALL I.D. CARD SCHEME

WHAT I.D. CARDS WILL MEAN

- It will mean more aggravation for local residents, as getting into the ground will take longer.
- It will mean the smaller clubs will have difficulty making ends meet, as crowds will be smaller. Some may even have to close!
- Trouble is more likely to occur outside grounds especially if the system breaks down.
- It is an infringement of the basic rights of the individual.

The plans from the Government are hastily prepared, muddled and show no understanding of football. All it will do is export any trouble outside the ground into our streets.

By
JOHN
HARRISON

It was Bill Shankly, the late, lamented sage of Anfield, who was credited with delivering one of the game's classic tongue-in-cheek quotes. 'Football isn't a matter of life and death,' he said. 'It's more important than that.' The saying is one we've all heard, of course, in one form or another, down the years since the great man's death. It was only earlier this month, however, that the quip took on an altogether more sinister significance. Plymouth-born Trevor Francis, who could so easily have been managing Argyle this season rather than QPR, committed one of the season's stranger follies. For it was he who summoned a press conference to announce that disciplinary measures had been taken against one of his players who had had the audacity to miss a match so that he could be present at the birth of his son.

Martin Allen, who claimed that the club was given full advance warning of his intentions, was fined £1,500 — tantamount to two weeks wages — and given a public dressing-down completely out of proportion to his so-called offence.

When football takes itself so seriously that one of its practitioners is villified for being nothing more than a good father, it is time indeed to become concerned for the game's sanity. There are 50-odd matches in a player's season — 450-500, say, in an average career. There are, however, only likely to be one or two occasions when he is invited to experience one of life's emotional high-points. I can think of no other sport capable of acting thus — even cricketers at the height of their short season are allowed compassionate leave in such circumstances.

Not that QPR's actions should have come as too much of a surprise. We have, after all, in recent weeks listened incredulously to plans by Arsenal to ban from their terraces those ingenious inflatables which have brightened up our grounds this season. How can soccer be worth a fig if it can't have the occasional laugh at its own expense? Not that we in the media are blameless when it comes to compounding the game's dour image, its blinkered win-at-all-costs mentality.

I remember one crestfallen local radio man, interviewing, in typically funereal tones, Dave Smith in the aftermath of a home defeat. The reporter looked shocked when the former Argyle manager put an avuncular arm round his shoulder and said: 'Don't cry lad; it's only a game.' It is, after all, no more than that.

CLOSED CIRCUIT TELEVISION

Three minutes before the interval, a bottle was thrown towards the opposing side's goalkeeper. The incident was captured by the CCTV system and 57 seconds later police had arrested the offender. By the half-time whistle, he had been led away for questioning, charged and subsequently pleaded guilty at the court hearing.

CCTV is the most effective anti-hooligan measure inside grounds and more than 100 stadia in Britain are equipped with cameras installed by The Football Trust.

CCTV forms only part of the Trust's many initiatives. Each year it receives over £9.5 million from the Spotting-the-Ball competition run by Littlewoods, Vernons and Zettlers and spends it on projects that benefit every level of the game throughout the United Kingdom.

Talking Point

The result from Albania cheered us all up, the exceptions being those tabloid representatives who had to put their hatchets and knobkerries away for another time, so leaving Bobby Robson to travel to the airport without a single mark on his back.

But while the assassination experts stole away in the expectation of living to fight another day, I still have doubts whether during the next two or three years, our international reputation will be enhanced.

I think we shall qualify. But if we do, and having got to Italy, I would be surprised if we do any better than we did in the last World Cup even though there may be no 'hand of God' to intervene against us next time.

There is something about the England psyche, about our national make-up, which holds us back when we enter the big stage.

In 1966, with ground advantage, Alf Ramsey devised his own wingless system, which worked a treat, and we won the World Cup — and won it well, despite what anyone says to the contrary.

In Mexico four years later (and I can vouch for this because I was there and saw it happen) Ramsey hampered his cause with self-inflicted wounds with disastrous substitutions against West Germany once we had virtually won the match with a 2-0 lead and only 20 minutes remaining.

Even so, we were potential winners in Mexico. But since then, we have been nothing more than also-rans. And there is no real optimism for thinking that in Italy, we shall do anything better than offer an average, face-saving performance.

We still cling to the outmoded idea of lumbering, pedestrian central defenders because they are what serve us well in our domestic competitions throughout a winter of heavy surfaces.

We still tend to shackle our gifted players like Hoddle and Waddle by rigidly expecting them to be subservient to the system instead of telling them to go out and be themselves.

But above all, we can't succeed if we don't have the players. And while the overall team standards may be as high as they've ever been in England, the number of quality, star players has diminished.

We have no Bobby Charlton, no Bobby Moore and no Martin Peters. We do have Bryan Robson, of course, but too much is expected of him because of the unpredictability of men like Gary Lineaker and John Barnes.

You can't make a silk purse, as they say. So while you may not think Bobby Robson is the ideal man for the England manager's job, he's only as good as the players at his disposal.

And without wishing to appear a dismal Jimmie, on the world stage our number of flair players is woefully inadequate when it comes to expecting us to be potential World Cup winners, like we were 30 years ago.

DIRECTOR
EXCELLENCE

'Nine Games In Ten Days
— 140 matches a season!'

These were just two of the responses received when a number of Under 14 players were interviewed about their football commitments. During a season, they played regularly for their school, their youth team, a Schools' Association Rep. side, their Youth League Rep. side, a Sunday side and for other sundry organisations!

At the Centre we find that boys are extended to the physical limits from now until the end of the season. Easter is early this year and despite the relatively mild winter months, the weather is beginning to take its toll of fixtures, forcing the inevitable glut of matches in the months from mid-March to mid-May.

There can be little doubt that a disservice is done to the very talented players by asking them to play too much football — 'over-play' has a detrimental effect on schoolboys and the following list does not pretend to be exclusive:-

- Physical demands are too great.
- Injuries result from lack of recovery time.
- Future enthusiasm for the game is put at risk.
- Little time is available for alternative interests.
- The time for coaching and practice of skills is restricted by the demands of matches.
- There is a conflict of loyalties.

People in the area are now, after many years of consistent effort and application, well aware of the type of coaching that takes place every Tuesday, and during the holidays, at the Centre. Emphasis is unashamedly put on the technical competence of each and every boy. Through progressive practices and small sided opposition we gradually, and I stress gradually, encourage an adjustment from 'master of the ball' to 'master of the ball in the game'. The coaches at the Club are encouraged by the widespread belief that this formula is the right one to foster the potential of the players in our charge, despite the public overtures of the 'win at all costs' brigade.

Season 1988/89 might well be a most memorable one in the five year history of the Centre. Gary Penhaligan and Owen Pickard have both made their First Team debuts and Darren Garner attracted favourable press on his recently acquired professional status after an unusually short one year YTS. Similar reports have been received about the efforts and tenacity of several other much respected former Centre members 'on the books' at Home Park.

Lighter evenings and the opportunity to perform on grass always brings its own flavour and enjoyment and we all look forward to the training programme now switched from the indoor arena of Marjons to the grassy plains of Harpers Park training pitch.

HENDERSON

In the long history of the F.A. Cup, a Third Division side has never triumphed. For the first six years of the existence of its 'younger brother', the Football League Cup, the same inhibitions applied. Then in 1967, QPR broke the barrier to put paid to West Bromwich Albion.

Two years later, Swindon Town, under the shrewd management of Danny Williams, carried off the trophy in a remarkable success against one of the most renowned cup-fighting teams of all time, Arsenal.

For Swindon it was a delirious success in what they hoped would be the considerable double achievement of League Cup and promotion to Division 2. In the final reckoning they lost out to Watford on goal average in a race for the championship, but gained their goal — as runners up.

Indeed, the cup path was very hard and strewn with pitfalls. It took them 11 matches to reach Wembley, including a Herculean effort in the semi-final they finally overcame Burnley at The Hawthorns 3-2 after the teams had ended on a 3-3 aggregate home and away.

It looked nothing more than an enjoyable day out at Wembley for the gallant Swindon survivors, ending as sacrificial lamb on the altar of Arsenal's long and honoured history. Even when Roger Smart, the 'Roger Hunt' of the Swindon attack, scored to make things look very interesting, the Gunners looked unperturbed.

But the rhythm was not there and they could contain the dangerous Don Rogers, a winger of powerful build, difficult to shake off the ball and possessing a lethal shot. Just how lethal Arsenal were to discover...

Bobby Gould gave Arsenal hope with a typically-plundered goal but Rogers got on the score-sheet to restore Swindon's lead.

And after a breathtaking run, he smashed in Swindon's third to silence the massed ranks of Arsenal supporters and invite emotional fervour from practically everyone else.

A situation to satisfy the palate of the neutral English soccer fan had been realised — the underdogs had won, handsomely.

In 1881 a clergyman, the Rev. W. Pitt formed an amateur football club, and it was soon accepted they were the best in Wiltshire. After a short period the club started to broaden its outlook, and engaged some professional players.

In 1894 they were accepted as one of the original members of the Southern League Division 1 in which, with Millwall and Southampton, they had continuous membership from their inception in 1894 to 1920 when they became founder members of Division 3 (South) of the Football League.

Their first ground was a field in the Old Town area, moving next to another site adjoining a quarry, but after a tragic accident in which a small boy fell into the quarry during a match the club moved to Globe Field the following season.

In 1884 they moved once again to 'The Croft', home of Swindon Rugby Club, but after twelve months they moved to the County Ground, their present home. The record attendance of 32,000 was recorded in an F.A. Cup tie 3rd Round against Arsenal in January 1972.

Only on seven occasions have Swindon moved out of the 3rd Division but in 1968/69 came their biggest success when they won the Football League Cup at Wembley, defeating Arsenal by 3-1.

The club staged one of the first games under floodlights in April 1951 in a friendly game against Bristol City.

Many well known names have played for the club since the last war, to name a few: Ernie Hunt, Mike Summerfield, John Trollope, Don Rogers, Roger Smart, Robert Woodruff, Stan Harland, Mel Nurse, Rod Thomas, Jimmy Allen, Colin Prohett, Ken Stroud, Peter Downsborough, and many others.

At present the club have Paul Trollope, 1st year trainee and Nicky Summerbee, 2nd year trainee on their books. These two lads are the sons of John Trollope and Mike Summerbee who were members of Swindon Town's outstanding young team of the early 1960's.

Lou Macari (Manager). Born Aberdeen, June 4th 1949. Played 57 games for Glasgow Celtic before moving to Manchester United for whom he made 329 league appearances. Became player-manager at Swindon Town in July 1984, his first success came the following season winning the Division 4 Championship followed by promotion to Division 2. Won 24 Scottish International caps.

Fraser Digby (Goalkeeper). Born Sheffield, April 23rd 1967. Height 6'1". League News

By
DEREK
HENDERSON

Who is the oldest player in the Football League? Answer: Tommy Hutchinson of Swansea City. Tommy, a Scottish international who went from Blackpool to Coventry, and later to Manchester City, is now 41. He has just signed a two-year contract as player-coach to the Welsh club.

Tottenham's subsidiary company Sychro System, have signed a multi-million pound deal to distribute the tickets for the 1990 World Cup finals in Italy. Tottenham's chairman Irving Scholar flew to Rome to clinch the deal which will involve tickets being sold in Italy through the branches of a national bank. Spurs beat off competition from American organisations for the deal, said to be worth £200 million.

Colin Clarke, who has been eager to part company with Southampton for some time, moved to Queens Park Rangers for a club record of £800,000. The Irish international had been languishing in Saints reserve side before Trevor Francis snapped him up.

Luckless Norman Whiteside. The Irish international, who has been out of Manchester United's side for a year with achilles tendon trouble, was hoping at last to make a return to the team — but then he contracted chicken-pox!

Remember Alan Kennedy, the Liverpool and England left-back? He's now turning out for GM Vauxhall Conference side Northwich Victoria, at 33.

David Oldfield, the Luton Town striker, spurned an offer from West Ham to join Manchester City instead. The Australian-born Oldfield, an England Under 21 international, was recruited from youth football in Milton Keynes only four years ago and cost the City club £600,000.

A less high-powered move was that of Mick Adams, the versatile Leeds United player who went to Southampton for £25,000 — no doubt part of the Clarke fee.

Terry Yorath, whose move from Swansea to be manager of Bradford City caused a furore which ended in a High Court ruling in favour of Bradford and their new man, has paid up £18,000 to buy out the remainder of his Swansea contract.

He was left with five months of his contract to run — so one can easily work out what his annual salary was at the Vetch Field.

When John Sillett, the Coventry manager, read in a national newspaper two days after his player Steve Sedgley had played for England Under 21 in Albania, that he would like to join a London club, he disciplined him and dropped him for the next game — against West Ham, ironically.

Wolves striker Steve Bull, praised by rival manager Phil Neal of Bolton for his match-winning goal against Wanderers, won his first England Under 21 cap in Albania, and helped in one of the goals by which England won 2-1.

Flash Back

Twenty four seasons ago.
November 7, 1964. Argyle 2,
Swindon 1

Argyle's unbeaten home record was in threat for only a few moments. They fell behind to an opportunist goal a minute before the interval from Peter Leggett, but Swindon, who had high hopes of pulling off their first away victory for more than a year, were still congratulating themselves when Mike Trebilcock swooped for the equaliser. It was virtually the first shot worthy of the name managed by Argyle before the break as they struggled to find their attacking rhythm. All that changed in the second half when the home side dominated from start to finish and piled the pressure on for visiting keeper Frank Haffey.

The outcome of the match, in fact, hinged on the two goalkeepers. When Argyle were awarded a 70th minute penalty, skipper John Newman took a bold gamble by handing over the spot-kick duties to Cliff Jackson after missing himself two weeks earlier. Jackson duly obliged with the winner to confound the reputation of Haffey, a £8,000 acquisition from Celtic, as a specialist saver of penalties. The Swindon keeper had kept out nine of the previous ten penalties awarded against his side, but was powerless to stop a thumping drive from crashing into the roof of the net which left Jackson celebrating putting one over on his former teammates.

It was a memorable match also for Argyle keeper Dave Maclaren, who remembered nothing about the last 20 minutes of the first half after sustaining a broken nose following a dual collision with Newman and opposing forward Mike Summerbee. 'I was in a daze and suffering from blurred vision,' said Maclaren, who insisted in playing on.

Argyle were subsequently indebted to his bravery in saving at the feet of Summerbee late on to deny Swindon an equaliser. The home side also had much to thank left half Duncan Neale for: he was a tower of strength in the home defence, particularly in the first half when Swindon called most of the shots.

Attendance: 16,215.

Argyle: Maclaren, Book, Reeves, Williams, Newman, Neale, Jones, Trebilcock, Lord, Jackson, Jennings.

Swindon: Haffey, Dawson, Trollope, Morgan, Hallett, Smart, Leggett, Atkins, Summerbee, Skeen, Rogers.

By
JOHN
HARRISON

Terry and Maureen would like to wish Plymouth Argyle a very successful 1988-89 Season, good luck to Ken Brown and the lads.

Junior Pilgrims

What will you do with this programme when you get home? Will you put it with all the other magazines, comics and newspapers that get thrown out at the end of the week? Or are you one of those fans whose programmes are kept neatly in a box or binder? Standing on a shelf in your room lined up in order, they're proof of all the matches you've seen. But then perhaps your collection is more extensive than that and includes programmes from older brothers, uncles and friends who have seen matches that took place even before you were born!

Collecting programmes is as popular a hobby amongst junior fans as football sticker collecting - perhaps your programmes even sit next to your sticker collections on your shelves? In fact both collecting hobbies started life quite simply. Originally programmes were no more than a list of the players in the two teams, and picture cards were simple painted pictures of players given away with cigarettes.

You have to feel sorry for the junior football fan in those days. Nothing to read while waiting for kick off and at half time, and having to keep cards of all his favourite players wrapped up in elastic bands, as the collections in those days didn't come with albums! Thank goodness programmes in the sixties began to change to look more like the one in your hands! Pictures, articles and even colour were added as clubs aimed to make their programmes more attractive and interesting. At around the same time, Giuseppe Panini introduced the idea of a sticky-backed picture card and also the sticker album, which enables you to keep your pictures (now colour photographs) neatly in informative albums that you can dip into at any time just like a book.

Nowadays of course programme editors aim to continually improve the contents, with new features, colour mini-posters of players, and even special sections like this for junior fans! So at last in these pages the two great football collecting hobbies come together. And it's at grounds like Home Park that you can enjoy both your hobbies and watch your favourite team at the same time!

The Reserves crashed to their third defeat in four games in the Great Mills League when Saltash United boosted their Premier Division title hopes with a 2-0 win at Home Park. The Ashes, who were in third place, kept on the heels of Exmouth and Taunton with goals in the 17th and 39th minutes from recent signing and former Argyle striker Terry Journeaux. Impressive work from Mark Damerell and John Durham set up Journeaux for the first — an easy tap-in — while Bradley Swiggs, another ex-Pilgrim, prompted the move from which Damerell, again, crossed for Journeaux to finish with distinction. Argyle worked hard throughout and their best chance before the break fell, after good approach work from Calvin Plummer and Paul Rowe, to midfielder Stuart Casey, who dragged his low shot just wide. Argyle's hopes of making amends four days later at Liskeard were ruined by the storms which rendered Lux Park unplayable.

Regular reserve-team watchers will have been delighted by the news that gifted midfielder Darren Garner has signed a full-time professional contract. He is still only 17, but manager Ken Brown has been so impressed by his potential that he offered him the chance of terms a year earlier than is normal. Darren, whose parents come from St. Budeaux, is a product of Argyle's School of Excellence and still plays for the Devon Schools team. Garner is a creative, skilful ball-player with an eye for goal. Those few who braved an arctic wind to watch the 3-0 South West Counties League win over Torquay United recently will have remembered, above all, Garner's superbly-taken first goal, which looked out of place given the mundane level of the rest of the game.
